

Amphibians are us!

Lately we've been finding lots of amphibians at restoration sites. Among those we've encountered are a rough skinned newt and a long toed salamander (with yellow stripes) at Howard Miller Steelhead Park, and a juvenile Giant Pacific salamander at Finney Creek (in the aquatic phase). Amphibians are a good indicator of healthy habitat, so these little guys are a welcome sight!

Larval Pacific Giant Salamander

Long Toed Salamander

Rough Skinned Newt