

Volunteers Needed!

Did you know that the Marblemount Hatchery raises wild Skagit River Chinook? Or that a few steps from the hatchery is a great steelhead fishing spot? As a Hatchery Tour Guide, you can teach the public about these and other fascinating facts of the Marblemount Hatchery and Skagit salmon during the 2009-10 eagle watching season. Skagit Fisheries Enhancement Group seeks volunteers to lead hatchery tours at the WDFW Marblemount Hatchery this winter. After attending a workshop held on Saturday, December 5, 11am-2pm, volunteers will sign up to lead hatchery tours on at least two weekend days throughout the season. Tour dates are every Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 6-Jan. 31; visitors come from near and far to see eagles and learn about salmon and hatchery practices. Here's your chance to pass on your enthusiasm for salmon as a resource and as a vital part of the Skagit River ecosystem!
